Council Refuses to Confirm the Appointment of Holloway for Veterinary Surgeon.

A Memorial to Delegate Toole Passes the Council, But Fails to Pass

Muster Before the House.

The House Discusses a Number of Measure and Spends Some Time on the Bounty Bill.

Business is going through both houses rapidly. The council was busily engaged yesterday in transacting matters of importance to the territory and several measures of more than minor importance were discussed. But it seems that passed the memorial petitioning Delegate Toole to change a certain sentence in the petition asking congress to give to Montana the Fort Ellis reservation. Judge Davis, acknowledging that the house wes a common ordinary body, made the first kick. He would not petition Delegate Toole, but would petition congress. The judge was humored, and the memorial railed to pass. The council refused to confirm Veterinary Surgeon Holloway,

THE COUNCIL.

Business began by the presentation by Kennedy of petitions for the Australian system of voting, signed by six citizens of Silver City, eighteen of Dearborn, 101 of Marysville and eighty-five of Helena. Referred to the committee on elections.

Brown, from the judiciary committee, reported council bill No. 32, concerning exemptions from jury duty, with the recommendation that it pass. Also house bill No 12, allowing towns and cities of a certain size to incur additional indebtedness, with the same recommendation. Both bills were referred to general orders.

Kennedy reported that council bill No. 4. admitting women to the practice of law, council bill No. 14, concerning county attorneys, and council bill No. 15, concerning justices of the peace acting as police mag istrates, had been handed to the governor for his consideration at 4:50 p. m., Feb. 12. Collins, from the printing committee, re-ported council bill No. 29, the printing bill, with amendments and recommendation for passage. Placed on general orders. The amendments make no important change in Middleton, from the judiciary special committee on house bill No. 8, the bounty bill, reported the bill with amendments and recommendation for passege. Bill and amendments were placed on general orders.

The council went into committee of the whole, Kennedy in the chair. The first bill under consideration was Brown's bill to trepeal the charter fof the statutes which provides for the declaration of occupancy on unsurveyed lands. The discussion which followed developed the fact that the law was not a dead letter, as Mr. Brown had supposed, but that it was applicable in almost every county in the territory by parties desiring to settle on the government lands. The committee consequently decided to recommed that the bill do not pass.

Council concurrent resolution providing

Council concurrent resolution providing council concurrent resolution providing for adjournment was discussed to some ex-tent, and the committee voted to recom-mend that it be made the special order for next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The bounty bill was finally considered, other minor amendments adopted, and the

The committee then rose, council resumed and the chairman reported. Further consideration of Brown's bill was indefinitely postponed. The adjournment resolution was made the special order for next Monday. The amendments to the bounty bill were sent to the engrossing committee, and the council took a recess until 2 o'clock.

At 2 p. m. the council resumed.

Brown, from the indiciary committee, re ported a memorial to Delegate Toole ask-ing him to endeavor to have the provision which would make the Fort Ellis lands, if granted to the territory, revert to the gov-ernment if they were not used for educational purposes stricken from the bill granting the lands. The memorial was passed under suspension of the rules.

The council then went into committee of the whole, Kennedy in the chair. Council bill No. 31, concerning gates and bars, was considered and with some slight amendments was recommended for passage.

The house amendments to council bill No. 17, prescribing when certain acts of the legislature should take effect, were considered and the committee voted to recomsidered and the committee voted to recommend non-concurrence in the amendments and to request a conference committee.

A message from the governor announced that he had signed the bill to admit women to the practice of law, the bill concerning the employment of additional counsel by county commissioners, and the bill allowing justices of the peace to act as police magistrates under certain circumstances.

The council then went into executive session and when the council rose the clerk was instructed to make a minute on the record that the nomination by the gover-nor of Herbert Holloway as territorial vet-erinary surgeon had been rejected.

The council then adjourned until 10 e'clock this morning.

HOUSE.

The house met at 10 o'clock, the first business being committee reports. Whitney, chairman of the elections and territorial affairs committee, reported house bill No. 9, which is a substitute for Comfort's original bill for the better protection of game and bill for the better protection of game and fish, with a recommendation that the same do pass. Placed on general orders.

Murray, chairman of the committee of the whole, reported house bill No. 18 (Moore's registration bill), with a recommendation that as amended it pass. Referred to the engrossing committee.

A motion made by Haskell was carried that the bill when engrossed be referred to the printing committee with instructions to have printed 200 copies of the same. Swiggett, of the select committee to which was referred house bill No. 13 relating to the protection of fish reported the same back with a recommendation that it do not pass. Placed on general orders.

The select committee on the part of the house appointed to confer with a like committee of the council to formulate a bill regulating the practice of medicine and surgery reported a substitute for house bill No. 6. The substitute embodies the best features of the two bills pending in the house and council. In brief it is as follows:

Gillette, chairman of the joint enrollment committee, reported that council bill No. 4, concerning the admission of women to practice law; council bill No. 11 concerning county attorneys, and council bill No. 15 concerning police magistrates, had been handed to the governor for his signature.

Moore, by unanimous consent, was allowed to offer an amendment to house bill No. 18 (the registration bill) striking out the words "territorial prison" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "penitentiary." The bill was then referred again tiary." The bill was then referred again to the engrossing committee.

Haskell, without previous notice, introduced house joint resolution No. 6 to authorize George O. Foss to make an official map of the territory showing mountain ranges, streams, cities, towns, postoffices, etc., and providing for the purchase of 200 copies of such map at $2.50 each for the use of the territory. The map when com-pleted is to be signed by the president of the council, speaker of the house and the surveyor-general of the territory. Comfort, without previous notice, introduced house bill No. 33, to prevent swine from running at large. For the first offense a fine of $10 is prescribed as the penalty and $20 for each subsequent offense. The moneys collected from such fines goes to the county treasury. Read first and second times and placed on general orders.

The house resolved itself into committee The house resolved itself into committee of the whole, Congdon in the chair. House bill No. 9, for the better protection of game and fish, was taken up. Davis didn't want beaver protected; they were too destructive in their habits. Blakeley was of a different coming. The animal was a friend to the opinion. The animal was a friend to the ranchmen. He built his dams and reser-voired water in the spring which was of great benefit to farmers. Davis arose and in behalf of the laboring men protested If dams were necessary the workingmen If dams were necessary the workingmen would like to build them. He didn't believe in making the beaver a substitute for workingmen. The member from Lewis and Clarke was ruled out of order, there being no second to his motion.

Moore took a hand in aid of the trowel-tailed dam builder.

Not more than ten days ago a farmer in the Deer Ledge valley had said to him that he hoped the legislature would try to pass the Deer Lodge valley had said to him that he hoped the legislature would try to pass some law so that Indians would be prohibited from coming on his ranch and killing the beaver. The animal was a great kelp to him as they would dam up his irrigating ditches at night, reservoiring the water, and in the morning all he had to do was to cut the dams and he had a good head of water. The beaver was not knocked out, and if the bill becomes a law as it reads now it will be a misdemeanor to kill one after its passage for a period of six kill one after its passage for a period of six years. To be punished by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $500, or imprisonment in the county jail not less than two months nor more than six months, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Joslyn attempted to knock out the elk Joslyn attempted to knock out the els, who is also put on the same footing as the beaver. He said the elk was hunted by the Indians more than any other animal two to one, unless as suggested by his friend from Lewis and Clarke and Jefferson, it was a squaw. Any attempt to prohibit the Indians from hunting them would be almost impossible.

Whitney wanted to know why they could not be prohibited from killing eik just as well as killing cattle or stealing horses. The question was put on Joslyn's amendment, which was lost, the eik having quite a number of friends.

The bill was further amended so that white tailed deer, black tailed deer or antelope shall not be killed between Jan. 1, and Oct. 1, of the same year. The first section was amended by providing that any person having in his possession the flesh or hide of any of the animals mentioned in that section, that fact shall be presumptive of his guilt.

The house resumed and took a recess

The afternoon session of the house was a ong one, lasting until nearly 5 o'clock. The speaker signed house joint resolu-tion No. 5, for the relief of the members of the school text-book commission.

the school text book commission.

The house then went into committee of the whole with Waite in the chair.

House bill No. 13, to protect fish in the streams of Montana, came before the committee with a recommendation that it do not pass. It went by the board.

The substitute for house bill No. 6, reported by the joint conference committee of the house and council, was then called up and adopted by sections. The only amendments made to it were to make the president of the examining board elective from among members of the board, and taking from justices of the peace jurisdiction over violations of the act.

The house resumed and house bill No. 18 was reported correctly engrossed and was reported correctly engrossed and placed on the calendar for a third reading. The following was received from the Council joint memorial No. 11.

To the Hon. J. K. Toole, delegate in congress from Montana territory:

"Your memorialists, the council and house of representatives composing the legislative assembly of said territory, most legislative assembly of said territory, most respectfully represent that they are in receipt of your esteemed favor of the 2d inst. enclosing house resolution No. 12,148 introduced by you in the house of representatives of the United States relating to the granting of the abandoned Fort Ellis military reservation to Montana for educational purposes, and beg leave to urge upon you the necessity of striking from said bill the proviso, that whenever the said grounds should be deemed necessary and advisable on the part of the territory, a portion, at least, of said lands might be sold by the territory for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a college or colleges as contemplated by said bill and to create a fund to perpetuate the same."

The memorial was read a first and second time.

Blakely moved that the rules be suspended and the memorial be put on its

Hunt inquired if the memorial was subject to amendment.

The chair ruleed that it was not.

Hunt suggested it might be proper to refer it to a committee until morning.

Hunt moved the memorial be referred to Hunt moved the memorial be referred to an appropriate committee to report forth-Blakeley moved to amend by indefinitely postponing consideration of the memorial. Hunt's motion prevailed and the memorial was referred to elections and territorial affairs committee.

Congdon of the committee of the whole, reported house bill No. 9 with amendments and a recommendation that the same pass.

Received and adopted.

A slight shade of annoyance ewept across the face of the speaker as Joslyn offered an amendment to the bill just received to strike the word "elk" out of the first section and insert it in the second section of the bill. The first section forbids the killing of elk for a period of six years after the passage of the bill. To insert "elk" in the second section would be to prohibit their killing between the first day of January and the first day of October of the same year. The question was put on Josiyn's offer to amend and the clerk's tally showed ayes, 10, navs, 11, Josiyn thought there are the custom have been detected among the observances of the Northern tion and insert it in the second section ayes, 10; nays, 11. Also house bill No. 6 with a substitute and a recommendation that the substitute with amendments be adopted, which was House bill No. 13 was referred to the engrossing committee.

Blakeley made a motion to suspend the rules and put the substitute for house bill No. 6 on final passage, but withdrew it, the bill not having been engrossed as amended. It was then referred to the engrossing com-

Joslyn of the ways and means committee reported council bill No. 26 with a substitute and a recommendation that it pass.

The substitute is practically the same as the original bill introduced by Hunt. Faro bank, round the table poker, or the selling of auction and Paris mutual pools in races are to be licensed and the "sure thing" games are forbidden. Piaced on thing" games are forbidden. Placed on general rules.

Whitney, of the elections and territorial affairs committee, reported back council joint memorial with the recommendation that it be adopted. The rules were suspended and the memorial was on its final passage when Haskell troubled the waters. He was opposed to the passage of the memorial. "We are asked to memorialize the Hon. Joseph K. Toole, delegate in congress, to strike certain words out of a bill pending before congress." He was in favor of such a memorial, but was certainly opposed to memorializing any individual to strike out certain words in a bill.

Joslyn proposed to cure all this by striking out "Hon. J. K. Toole" and inserting in lieu thereof "congress of the United States."

Hunt—Then you would have to thank congress for its esteemed favor of the 2d inst. (Laughter.)

Hence it is probable the tradition that ascribes its origin to a commemoration of the loving and charitable disposition of St. Valentine is a comparatively late invention. In the early days presents of gloves, garters and ewelry were very common.

Not long ago it was the custom among he lads and lasses to send each other val ntines with verses breathing undying de-otion and a swain who received a tinsel affair with two doves sitting upon adjoin-ing twigs rubbing their beaks together, while beneath them was a blood red heart pierced through and through with an ar-row supposably shot from Cupid's bow, was the happiest fellow alive and was not slow in showing his treasure to his friends. Some of the old boys may have one of these treasures in their trunks.

And of course the swain must reply. He would pick out a picture of some fair Rowena standing at her casement with her hands pressed against her breast, her eyes turned up in a dying eaif fashion to the inconstant moon, while beneath, kneeling upon the sward, was a gay young trouba-dour twanging a light guitar, and singing: "When the red, rosy dawn grows bright, love, Far away o'er the distant sea. And the stars cease to give their gentle light, love, "Will I wait for a welcome from thee

That was before the time of the bull dog That was before the time of the bull dog which now figures and has figured for some time in doggerel songs, before the days of the douche bath administered by a cruel fair one, and when it was thought not extraordinarily silly to be spooney. But those days are over. Valentines sentimental have been relegated to the children. Girls and boys in their teens are now so blase in love affairs that naturalness is a subject of derision. But it is doubtful whether the esoteric maiden who treats the blue after having swallowed a treads the blue after having swallowed a page of Browning, and before the pangs of mental indigestion begin, can feel the ecstatic bliss a poor, untutored girl experi-ences when she receives from a true heart

And from the number of comic valentines sent through the postoffice yesterday there must be a good many persons who would not scruple to do a criminal act. The boogstores, news stands and other places had a great many valentines of-played for sale, and from early morn until late at night the places were thronged with men, women and children looking over the stock and selecting valentines to suit their fancies. Perhaps every school teacher, merchant, mechanic or tradesman of every kind will receive a caricature upon his or her business this morning, and many a person will awaken to the fact that he has peculiarities which strike his friends and son will awaken to the fact that he has peculiarities which strike his friends and which if he possess he is guileless of knowing. Many a girl whose feet no longer stand where the brook and river meet will look at a horrid daub with spit curls and peaked nose and wonder if she really does look like that, shed a few tears, and then throw the offensive thing into the fire. Then some girl, a "rose with ail its sweet leaves yet folded," will look at the picture of a vain and glddy thing with a wad of gum stuck in her cheek and some cruel lines suggestive of total depravity will be read, and the girl, thoughtiess though she may be, will become hardened and go on a gum-chewing spree.

There will be many hearts made sad and despondent when according to tradition the world should be brighter and better, sunshine should dispel all gloom, differ-ences should be forgotten, hands should clasp hands, life should begin anew and ould rule supreme.
